Jim King starts protest!

Early this morning while playing in the rain with Carla and Clayton Shold the threesome came upon some yellow jacketed construction people with blueprints in hand. They said they were there to realign hole 4 and 14. At that point Jim King layed down in front of a tractor and said, "not until I've finished playing the hole!" After a tense stand off and the absence of police, cooler emotions prevailed, Jim finished the hole with a par.

Now the real story, the threesome came upon the construction team and asked what the reconfiguration would look like. The 4th green will be aligned closer to the pond and the tee blocks moved closer to the property line to have a soon to be 90-100 yard hole aiming away from the subdivision. The 14th green will be moved towards the 15th tee blocks, which will be relocated more towards the forward tees on 15. So in reality not terribly significant changes. We lose some yardage. This cub reporter spoke briefly with Spike and Lee who advised tree protection fences would go up today or tomorrow with construction happening asap. The idea is to get most done this year as it will take a minimum of six weeks of good spring weather to allow the greens sod to properly take. Spike and Lee will prepare maps to outline temporary playing conditions which should be ready in the Pro Shop Friday.

We're lucky to be still playing, so let's enjoy it while we can.
